WHIRLIGIG FOR 1961

Lengthening shadows...

WHIRLIGIG

DEDICATION . . .

Mrs. Mabel Sanders Pleasants was a true Southern lady; gracious, gay-hearted, friendly, generous. She lived for opportunities to make others happy. Above all, Mabel Pleasants was a woman of superb courage. She refused to be conquered by suffering and pain, and she was unfailingly sociable and warmly interested in everyone around her. As a teacher she was constantly concerned about her students, holding them up to the best that was in them. All of us across whom the shadow of her influence fell are richer for the memory of her courage and for the lessons she was able to teach by her genuine worth. It is to this gallant lady, who so generously devoted herself to the good and the happiness of others, that we proudly and gratefully dedicate this 1961 Whirligig.

FOREWORD

Students — each unique and individual — enter Greensboro Senior High School — a school not quite like any other. And immediately their shadows merge with that of the school. Its traditions, its opportunities, and its lessons become a molding influence in the life of every student; while each individual who works, plays, and learns with his fellows leaves his own shadow across their lives too. With the days and the years, these symbolic shadows grow and deepen — no less permanent, though unseen, than the forces which cast the shadows. This 1961 Whirligig has been designed to portray with as much variety and thoroughness as possible the shadows and shadow-makers of Greensboro Senior High.

From the day we become identified with GHS, our shadows begin to lengthen . . . Through absorbing study, probing for elusive answers, and blending our talents with others' to create a richer harmony,

we see our resolute efforts reflected in personal growth, honors, and achievements, both in the classroom and on the playing field...

and we earn friendships we shall keep renewed and treasure always.

In the teeming shadows of Greensboro Senior High School, students work and laugh together, developing not only intellectually but in a thousand diverse ways. They learn far more than mere facts, for they teach each other responsibility, leadership, honor, and the lessons that can be learned only by living.

And as they grow in maturity and influence, their increased stature casts longer shadows, touching and affecting all they can reach.

PERSONALITIES

GHS faculty are trusted and friendly guides

SUPERINTENDENT of Greensboro schools is Mr. Philip J. Weaver.

AT OPEN HOUSE Mr. Weaver (right) greets visiting school board members and interested patrons.

Growing school system is ultramodern at heart

Administrators and school board of the Greensboro schools can remember 1960 as the year when they abandoned a dated and outgrown building for ultramodern, handsome new quarters. This gave them more adequate and appropriate facilities for carrying on their complex and vitally important duties. It was the year, too, when Mr. Weaver flew to Russia in September as one of a group of administrators sent to observe Russian schools.

BOARD OF EDUCATION meets monthly at the city schools administration building. They are, seated, Mrs. Lessie E. Hoyle, Dr. George H. Evans, Mr. Richard K. Hunter, Mr. Richard M. Wilson, Chairman; Mr. George E. Norman, Jr. Standing: Superintendent P. J. Weaver, Mr. Robert F. Moseley, Attorney; Mr. L. P. McLendon, Jr. Absent: Mr. James E. Perrin.

PRINCIPAL A. P. Routh is Senior High's efficient admini-strator.

GHS progress is sure: Mr. Routh has acumen,

MRS. COLTRANE, Mr. Routh's versatile secretary, here helps Mr. Routh place the day's mail in teachers' boxes — only one of a myriad of tasks in her day.

This sprawling giant of a school demands an administration diplomatic and alert, an organization flexible enough to accommodate frequent emergencies as well as a steady succession of routine problems, and imaginative planning far ahead of the needs. For Senior High's enrollment continued to overtax facilities and available personnel. Innovations like accelerated classes, a musical composer-in-residence, and a language laboratory must be fitted into the school's program and made truly functional. It takes the very best in management.

MR. R. L. GLENN (left) is the genial and popular Assistant Principal. Above: Miss Jean K. Wood is the friendly, efficient Dean of Students.

IN THE CLINIC many problems cross Miss Wood's desk every day, end in pleasant solutions.

Completely indispensible in helping Mr. Routh keep this massive school running smoothly were two people: Mr. Glenn, assistant principal, with his steady smile and his always-right answer to

the need at hand, and Miss Wood, dean of students, with her poised and gracious approach to every emergency and duty of the clinic and attendance center.

The over-eighty teachers at Senior High not only worked closely with these two important people in many ways, but found time to be tireless advisers and ardent supporters of all school activities. They went on long trips to Nassau as chaperones; they played basketball and acted as cheerleaders with a girl's club. Above all they worked at being successful classroom teachers.

FACULTY CLUB officers are Secretary-Treasurer Scarborough, Vice-President Madlin, and President Puett.

FACULTY TEA moves smoothly with such expert service.

In English classes literature comes to life and books yield treasures to avid searchers

BOOK REPORTS are not dreaded when the book is interesting and the audience interested.

Sophomores, looking ahead toward three years of English, saw ominous mountains of themes, vocabulary lists, and book reports. Young orators reciting "Friends, Romans, countrymen" at fourth-period lunch showed that school was really under way. To juniors, English meant original short stories. In September they began thinking of catchy titles, but they waited until a week before the deadline to begin their masterpieces. Seniors babbling "Whan that Aprille" to a cha-cha rhythm announced that Beowulf, Chaucer, and autobiographies were confronting upperclassmen simultaneously.

As graduation approached, seniors had many memories of the English department: hours spent slaving over a term paper . . . Miss Mims' subtle explanation of a Shakespearean pun . . . Mrs. Newman's spicy jokes in creative writing class . . . the dazed feeling when Miss Joyner gave another pop test. Students who had applied themselves in their English classes were confident of future success when they received their diplomas.

REFERENCE work in the library reveals vast areas of information.

BOOKS for every interest and level of ability are available in Special Reading classes.

MAPS and globes add a graphic dimension to discussions of world history.

Maps give history a more graphic dimension

With a glance at the invention of the wheel, World history students were off to a rolling start. Next they moved to ancient civilizations, puzzling over the spellings of "Hammurabi" and "Thucydides." While World history classes watched Europe awaken from the Middle Ages, American history students had ringside seats for the American Revolution. Finally, both classes struggled into modern times and through two World Wars, then took a concerned look at our troubled present.

Bible students studied the history of the Jewish people and the birth of the Christian religion. Through the philosophy of the Bible, they learned how to become better people.

DETAILED reports about famous Biblical characters and scenes add vitality to study of the Old Testament.

Laboratory vitalizes foreign language study

This year for the first time at GHS, a brand new laboratory made the study of foreign languages more realistic. Inside one of thirty booths, a student of French or Spanish faced a panel of controls. After donning his ear phones, which he dutifully refrained from "clacking" together, he had to fight the urge to shout "blast off" instead of quietly pronouncing "Bonjour" or "Buenos dias" into the microphone.

When not in the lab, French students tried desperately to understand verb conjugations; while those studying Spanish followed Don Quixote as he tried to revive the age of chivalry. Latin students found that root words and prefixes aided them in the study of the modern languages. From Caesar to Cicero, they learned not only the language but the culture of the ancient Roman empire.

DON QUIXOTE and his picturesque world are created in colorful pictures by the students while they translate his story from the original Spanish.

LANGUAGE LABORATORY, used for the first time this year, results in vastly improved accents.

Step by careful step, in mathematics or in

GEOMETRIC FORMS help puzzled students visualize a problem's solution.

Mathematics is a development, a logical progression from basic ideas. At Greensboro Senior High School the student develops just as mathematics does, beginning with fundamental facts and gradually progressing to more complex concepts. The development began with instruction in the basic processes of all mathematics and passed to the symbolism of algebra.

Next the students entered the realm of geometry, dealing first with plane figures and then with solid forms, concluding their high school study with trigonometry. Each step in the student's growth was based on the foundation of all that had been learned previously and carefully prepared them for further study.

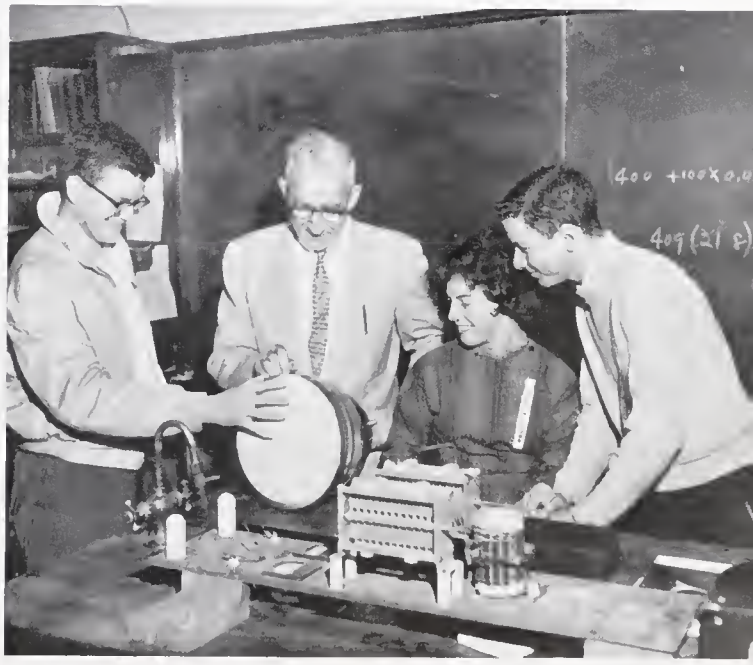
science classes, progress is toward the truth

EXPERIMENTATION whets the curiosity of chemistry students.

FREQUENT FIELD TRIPS enhance biology studies for enthusiastic students.

TELEVISION picture tube's mysteries vanish with Mr. Johnson's lucid explanations to physics students.



"Insects," "frogs," "leaves," and "worms" were words that described biology for sophomores. Classifying leaves and learning to spell impossible names of bones and muscles extracted frequent groans from underclassmen. However, many of the complainers signed up eventually for advanced biology, chemistry, and physics. Pleasure in discovering a microscopic animal in a drop of water or solving an unknown in chemistry was the reward science students received for their efforts. Projects submitted to the science fair in March demonstrated to the student body the importance of science in daily life.

PATTERN-PINNING and cutting determine success of finished garment.

To emphasize graphically the use of homemaking skills in vocations, home economics classes presented an assembly in December. While investigating careers corresponding to their interests, however, the girls were urged not to overlook opportunities for daily applications of home economics. Following this suggestion two progressive if slightly pessimistic girls constructed a bomb shelter, completely equipped with all facilities.

Meanwhile, family life students probed the problems of early marriage. Consequently, when the North Carolina Family Life convention had as its theme "Early Marriage, Problem or Challenge?" the students were able to apply results of their research.

stress acquiring skills for future vocations

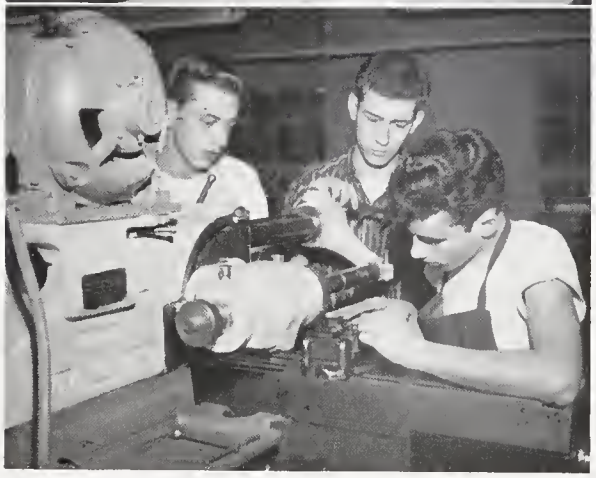
DICTAPHONE typing is difficult to even the most able commercial students.

Sounds of progress toward careers in the business world filled the Commercial building every day. Although typewriter keys clicked slowly at first, clumsy fingers soon grew limber and the typing student's goal of sixty words a minute drew nearer. Joining the clacking of the keys was the scratching of pencils on paper as shorthand students began to understand the weird squiggles they had seen on the blackboard. Vigorous erasing was the predominant sound in the bookkeeping classes when future financiers had trouble balancing the debit and credit columns. Varied sounds of office machinery at work and the steady hum of dictaphones proved that commercial courses at GHS were preparing students for good jobs in business.

DAILY PRACTICE and individual instruction aid students in mastering a useful skill.

PRINTING OFFERS fascinating and practical training to many boys.

THIS TABLE represents many hours of patient and loving work in woodworking class. Bottom: Machine shop student measures piece of metal with depth micrometer in preparation for working it on a milling machine.



In shops or drafting or

Possessed with a desire to create something tangible, the ambitious young men participating in the wood shop program made many beautiful pieces of furniture. In the machine shop a group of boys each period forgot their academic problems in the fascinating process of converting hunks of metal into useful tools. Whether they were cutting and gluing, sanding and burnishing wood to a satin finish, or grinding, shaping and polishing steel to a form they could be proud of, these boys in shop classes were creating articles of beauty. In print shop — which unfortunately was closed during the second semester — studying type styles, setting type, and using various kinds of presses became second nature. They put their new skill to practical use in many ways around GHS.

DRAFTING skills, though hard to master, can lead to engineering and architectural careers.

Miss Scarborough started many interested students toward a uniform goal — that of being an artist — although their respective styles were as varied as the color of their hair. These students, paint brush in hand and bottle of red paint lying in a puddle at their feet, dug deep into their emotions to bring forth all types of creations.

Boys taking drafting encountered another type of art, not so creative but requiring great precision and perseverance. The technical drawings produced by these students were examples of intricate neatness. In their work, the boys acquired the habit of giving careful attention to detail which was always appreciated by their teachers.

Sophomores soon adjust to fast GHS pace

From their first day at Senior High, sophomores found that within their new environment many things baffled them: locker combinations, "elevators," "escalators," third floors, the split assembly schedule, and finding their way around the sprawling GHS campus. They were suddenly in the midst of much harder courses, and they found themselves caught up in a faster pace.

Sophomores joined service, literary, and subject-related clubs, in addition to volunteering for many school services. They pushed toward their goal of raising $200 for their Whirligig pages by selling pencils to miserly juniors and seniors.

At ball games they were in the front row cheering their team and some of their classmates on to victory. They took vital parts in assembly programs. Some were on the Whirligig staff, while others took part in speech and dramatics productions.

Sophomores know that they are now an important part of Senior High. With the help of Miss Maddox, sophomore advisor, and Miss Furey, sophomore guidance counselor, this class has successfully completed their projects and come to the end of a busy year. They have really earned their new and coveted title — juniors. This class looks eagerly to the coming year.

Impatient Juniors finally reach halfway mark

and begin to accept greater responsibilities

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS, with Advisor Roe, are President Newnam, Knight, Hamlin, and (seated) Summey.

As the shadows of time lengthen, Juniors look expectantly toward an exciting and rewarding senior year. Behind them they are leaving a set of high standards for next year's Junior class to follow.

Their class project, a candy sale, provided each student with salesmanship experience, as well as providing money for their pages in Whirligig. To several students the honor of being elected a Junior Marshal brought pride and enthusiasm. In November certain Juniors were busy preparing for their annual Thanksgiving program. In February many intelligent Juniors were recognized for their outstanding qualities by being "tapped" into the National Honor Society. This was the first induction in which the Class of '62 was eligible to become members. However, Torchlight is not the only Honor Society open to juniors. Students who take a vivid interest in American history are honored with a bid from History Honor Society. Juniors were happy and excited at the arrival of their class rings, to them a shining symbol of their love for GHS. Members of the Class of '62 play an active part in almost every sport included in the school curriculum. Participants in football and basketball have made the Juniors very proud. Speech and dramatics, another aspect of school life, find many of the students involved actively in their courses. As the year ends, students become engaged with plans for the Prom, which the Junior class gives for the Seniors annually.

The Class of '62 now faces a new year of bright prospects and new goals. Their Junior year has been a bridge connecting a dreaming youth with a young adult, many of whose dreams have now been fulfilled.

JOHN ARTHUR PHILLIPS

DECEMBER 7, 1943 — OCTOBER 14, 1960

White dresses, neat suits, and gracious smiles were three identifying aspects of the thirty-two juniors who were chosen to serve the school at all public programs. Under the leadership of Chief Marshal Sam Coble and his assistant Ed White, and aided by their advisors, Miss Maunida Wales and Mrs. Frances Wilder, they performed their duties often and well. At almost every school function the marshals could be seen selling or collecting tickets, handing out programs, and ushering the audience down the aisles.

Leading the graduating seniors in their commencement processions was a demanding but a rewarding duty for the chief marshals. And these final programs brought out this helpful group of juniors for their grand finale.

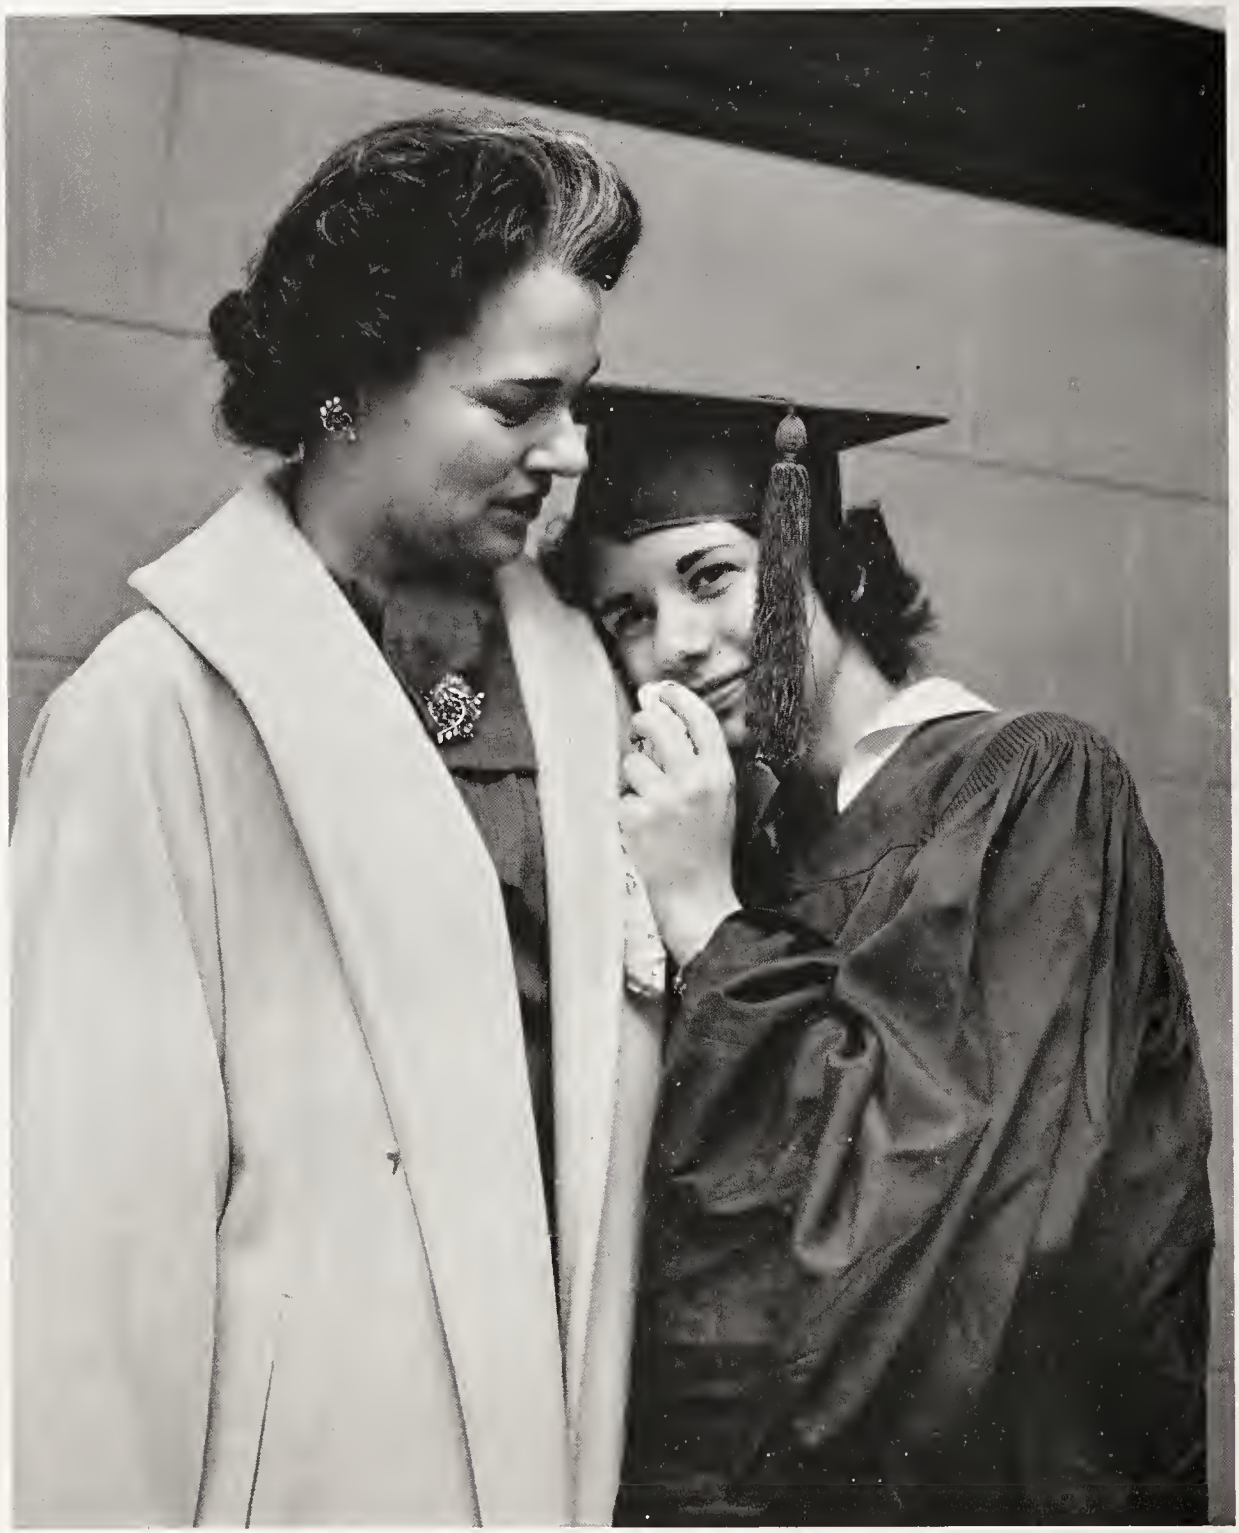
Industrious and versatile Seniors stay very

MOTHER SHARES joys and tears of daughter's graduation.



busy as they look forward to graduation day

Entering Greensboro Senior High School in 1958 brought us not only a feeling of excitement, but also one of expectation of the year when we would become seniors and could look forward to leaving the familiar halls of our school to build our future. For three all-too-short years, we have studied and participated in various activities which have made us ready to embark on the quest for more practical knowledge and broader experience.

For our class, as for all before us, there had to be projects for raising money, our main purpose being to provide a gift to the school from our Class of '61. To fill the depleted treasury, we chose to sell Whirlie ribbons and cans of peanuts.

One cherished privilege of becoming a senior is being able to participate in the stirring Christmas pageant and the rollicking Class Day. We took great pride in these traditional productions and did our best to make them a success. Even though the life of seniors is crowded with plans for Commencement and after-graduation, we do manage to slip in some studying — autobiography, Canterbury Tales, term paper, even trig. These studies kept us occupied until we could receive our diplomas and go our separate ways. These three years have been trying at times, but they have been years of achievement and fulfillment, years that graduates of Senior High School will long remember.

OFFICERS of Class of 1961 are Bullock, Foster, Advisor Joyner, President Rankin, and Saunders.

GHS Homemaker award goes to Sue Albright

CHEERFUL BULLETIN boards brighten rooms seniors sometimes consider gloomy.

Just as academic work adds substance to the shadows of the students at Greensboro Senior High School, the athletic program furnishes strength. Supplying athletics for students of all needs and abilities is the goal of Senior's planning — home room intramural competition, physical education classes, and the Varsity athletic program. Providing opportunities for physical as well as intellectual development makes the shadows the students cast those of well-rounded, alert individuals.

"Fight! Fight! With all your strength and might!" Thus the cheerleaders of GHS, headed by petite but sprightly Martha McKee, enthusiastically led the students in cheering the Whirlies on to victory. When the team left for games away from home, the cheerleaders went along to boost morale. Their infectious school spirit was caught by many who cheered with fervor at games here and away.

Bi-weekly pep rallies were instrumental in creating a healthy, competitive spirit. Senior High's mascot, the "Whirlibird," amused the spectators with his cavorting and endless antics. This energetic fellow and the tireless efforts of the cheerleading squad were hard to beat in promoting school spirit.

Monogram Club's goal is more student interest

Development of good sportsmanship in the student body was one of the foremost goals of the Monogram Club this year. This organization, composed of lettermen in the varsity sports, encouraged increased attendance at all games and greater support of GHS athletic teams. Working in close cooperation with the Athletic Association, Monogram Club members sold programs at football games and served as down markers. Members also helped the coaching staff in the field house, in the gym, and on the athletic fields. The most important function of the club was providing opportunities for friendship and fellowship among varsity athletes.

Champion is the word to describe the 1960 Whirlie football squad. The Whirlies again captured the Central Conference Championship and then were crowned state 4-A champions.

Coach Jamieson's team had an uphill battle after losing their first conference game to Burlington. It was necessary for them to win all of the four remaining conference games to gain a tie with Reynolds for the Central Conference Championship, which they did.

Standouts for the Whirlies included halfback Sonny Odom, and tackle John Hill, both of whom were selected for the Shrine Bowl game and the All-Conference team. Others were Dave Morgan, Dennis Saunders, Ervin Byrd, and John Giles. To round out the starting team were Powerful defense was one of the main keys to the success of the 1960 Whirlies. When the dust had cleared after the championship game, the Whirlies had the best defensive record in the state, having yielded a total of 52 points in twelve games, an average of less than one touchdown per game; while the offensive averaged more than 3 touchdowns per game. Defensive specialists were John Hill, Leonard Hayes, John Giles, in the line; and Sonny Odom, Dave Morgan, Charles Ephland, and Ervin Byrd in the backfield.

Whirlies defeat Reynolds here for 4-A crown

In post-season activities the Whirlies turned out the victor by defeating Gastonia and Winston-Salem Reynolds, the latter being for the State 4-A Championship. The Championship game was played in Greensboro for the first time in Coach Jamieson's 26 years of coaching at Senior High. The Whirlies defeated Reynolds (19-7) to claim the 4-A crown. The Whirlies had previously beaten Reynolds during the regular season 19-6.

GHS Basketball Team is 2nd in conference

Compiling an over-all record of 7 wins and 12 losses, the 1961 Whirlie basketball team was perhaps best described as unpredictable. In conference play, however, the Whirlies were able to accumulate a 7-2 record. This was good enough to place them second, behind Winston-Salem Reynolds, for the conference championship and the right to play in the state tournament, held in Greensboro for the sixth straight year. The Whirlies lost to East Mecklenburg in the first round of the tournament.

The Whirlies started the year with six straight losses to non-conference teams. Their first victory came at the expense of the High Point "Black Bison."

COACH JAMIESON discusses importance of good equipment with Captain James Team.

Whirlies show steady improvement all season

After defeating High Point, the Whirlies were able to compile a fine conference record until they encounered the undefeated team from Winston-Salem. The Whirlies were unable to handle the "Black Demons" and were forced out of their first-place position.

Much to the amazement of GHS students, the Whirlies dropped two games to their cross-town rival, Page. The first game was played at Page, the "Pirates" winning 52-48. In the return engagement at the GHS gym, the "Pirates" again proved their superiority by defeating the Whirlies 49-40.

This year's team was made up almost entirely of underclassmen. The starting line-up contained two sophomores, two seniors, and a junior. The only player to return from last year's starting team was guard James Team. Team was selected to be captain of the 1961 team and was high scorer for the season. The other starting senior, Sonny Odom, was a top reserve last year. Ralph Lowe, the only junior in the line-up, was a valuable player and gave the students some thrilling moments during the season.

Charles Black joined the squad at mid-season, after being ineligible during the first semester. Black was a tremendous help to the team in both rebounding and scoring. Other valuable reserves were Dave Morgan, Harold Holyfield, Harold McCall, and David Schwartz.

Coach Lewis McCall turned out another winning basketball team this winter. The "Little Whirlies" were defeated only once during their season of 19 games. The Junior Varsity first team had three sophomores — Bob Martin and John Hedrick at guard, and Jack Harville, a forward — and two juniors — center Jerry Clark and forward Dan Howe.

Heavyweight Hill leads 1961 Wrestling Team

COACHING from the sidelines is part of every wrestling match. Here Coach Manzi gives instructions to two young wrestlers.

The 1961 Whirlie wrestling team, coached by Claude Manzi, got off to a slow start this season, losing their first two meets to High Point and Burlington. But they bounced back to win their next three, against Page twice and Salisbury. As Whirligig goes to press the team has won three and lost two matches.

The nucleus of the Whirlie team is senior John Hill, who is apparently on his way to a state championship in the heavyweight division. The team includes many other promising prospects. Some of these are seniors Phil Shu, Dennis Harte, Dave Meyer, and juniors Danny Hawks, Leonard Hayes and David Metzbower.

SWIMMING TEAM — Jensen, Petty, Rankin, Troxler, Eiler, Burwell, Freedman, Riddle, Robinson.

Derby sets records for 1960 Swimming Team

During the 1959-1960 swimming season, a number of difficult meets gave the less-experienced Whirlie team the preparation needed to obtain fourth place in the state meet. Dan Derby set three records during the year.

The 1960 season has seen three victories for the swimmers at press time and a third place in a meet at East Carolina. Coach Bondanella has as his top swimmers Skip Burwell, Joddy Peer, and Jim Petty. Other standouts are Jim Freedman, Frank Starling, Lem Walters, and Buddy Rudd. Two very promising divers are Robert Stevens and Tom Troxler.

VICTORIOUS swimmers are jubilant after a difficult meet.

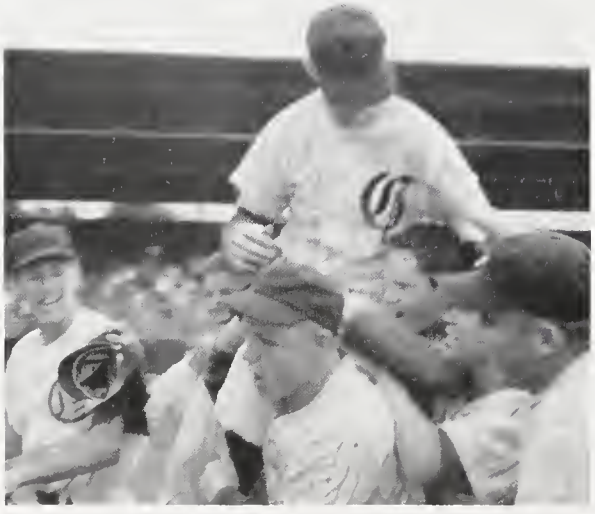
Powerful 1960 Whirlie Baseball Team wins

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP for Whirlies is only minutes old.



"Clutch play" was the key to the success of the 1960 Whirlie baseballers. When runs or an out were needed, the Whirlies would always come through. With this ability the Whirlies were able to win their first baseball State Championship since 1942. They won the championship by whipping East Mecklenburg 4-3 behind the brilliant pitching of Bobby Phillips. Phillips ended his career at Senior with an extraordinary record of 13 wins and 3 losses. The three losses of the season were to Burlington (4-3), Salisbury (1-0), and Wilmington (9-4). The latter was during the play-offs at Wilmington.

While Phillips was pitching, two other veterans were at bat for the Whilies. Dave Morgan and Winky Casey both ended the season with impressive batting averages. Both boys obtained these averages by coming up with vital hits which enabled the Whirlies' team to win the State Crown.

The Whirlies got off to a booming start, winning their first nine games. Every team except three was overcome by the pitching and hitting of the powerful Whirlies. Many of the Whirlie victories came on late inning surges.

During their climb to the top, the Whirlies encountered a hard-hitting, swift-pitching team from Wilmington. The Whirlies triumphed over Wilmington two out of three times. The last game the Whirlies won by a count of 9-3. By virtue of this victory the Whirlies won a berth in the finals of the State Tourney against East Mecklenburg. The Whirlies were led by the thrilling pitching of Phillips as they defeated East Mecklenburg 4-3.

To complete the starting team for the Whirlies there was second baseman Ervin Byrd, shortstop Harold Holyfield, third baseman Dave Daniels, and outfielders Phil Shu, Jim Wall, and Luke Medlin.

This year's squad promises to be another good one. Back from last year's team are Charles Ephland and Ervin Byrd, who helped the 1960 team in the pitching department; Phil Shu and Luke Medlin, who were outfielders; and Harold Holyfield and Dave Daniels, both of whom were infielders.

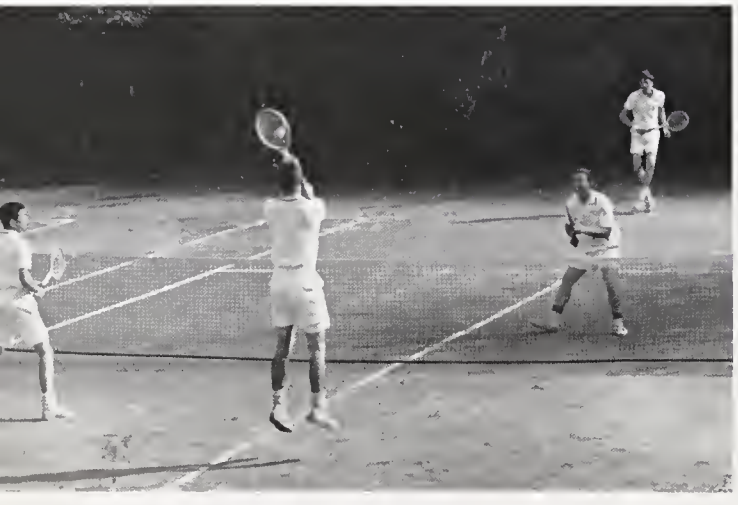
DURING PRACTICE players compete in doubles game.



Suffering from losses by graduation, the 1960 Whirlie tennis team had only a 2-5 record. The games lost were evidently due to the team's lack of experience; and at the end of the year when the players had become adjusted to varsity play, not enough games remained to show how much the team had developed. Several players had shown definite improvement, giving promise for a team able to make 1961 a more successful year.

The 1961 team will be built on the foundation of Allen McSween and Bill Enoch, seniors who compiled outstanding records in the 1960 season; and Joe Hunt, junior, who is expected to be especially powerful. In addition there will be a number of promising newcomers from the sophomore class.

Coach Claude Manzi and the 1960 Whirlie track team had a balanced season, winning three meets while losing two. The Whirlie trackmen defeated High Point, Burlington, Page, and Durham, and lost to Winston-Salem and Raleigh. The Whirlies placed second in the conference meet and fourth in the state meet.

Five stars plus a slew of "comers" formed the Whirlie team. The core was made up of distance runner Bill Dolinger, high jumper Tommy Clark, discus man Bob Jamieson, hurdler Bayard von-Herrmann, and sprinter Alan Turner.

Tommy Clark became state champion in the high jump. He broke the old state record of 6 feet with a leap of 6 feet 1 inch. Bob Jamieson was the champion in the discus event, with a toss of 153 feet, 3 inches to top the old mark of 150 feet, 10 inches.

"Neither rain nor sleet nor snow nor heat of day" stayed the girls of the physical education classes from their many and varied activities. Whether the scene was on the basketball court or on the broad stretches of the speedball field, you could see Senior High girls in a whirl of athletic enthusiasm. Composed of about 30 members, the GAA held a yearly open house for prospective new members in the middle of February. A project of selling candy and sweatshirts resulted in new basketball uniforms for the girls. Another project involved the entire school in an intramural program for both boys and girls in basketball. Twenty homerooms participated and the GAA members served as officials.

With the memory of their triumph for first place trophy at the annual state play day at High Point last spring still fresh in their minds, the girls eagerly awaited the coming renewal of that

KAREN GILL breaks state record by 6 seconds in AAU championship 200-meter relay competition.

Swim star Gill qualifies for Olympic trials

NUCLEUS of swimming team, Walters and Gill, pose with their coach, Mr. Jamieson. Lack of pool for regular practice prevents team activities.

"What's good for face and figure is good for swimming" was the rule for girls on the swimming team. This meant many restrictions on rich food and late hours, plus plenty of exercise, which they got at Lindley Park pool all last summer. Unfortunately the team's activities were curtailed all winter by lack of a pool for regular practice.

Last spring and summer the team participated in meets in Atlanta, Raleigh, High Point, Asheville, and Charlotte. In all they were successful, Karen Gill especially grabbing high honors. Whether for distance, speed, or form, Karen stands out. She has set seven new records in the last year, ranging from 80-yard fly and breast stroke in Raleigh to a 3-mile swim in Georgia. Karen has also qualified for the Olympic trials in Detroit this summer.

MAJORETTES are Mauldin, Carter, Weinrich, Earle, Lowe, Lane, Steed, and Rankin.

Ideas and experiences merge, just as the shadows of the students meet and mingle, in the rich variety of extracurricular activities and organizations at Greensboro Senior High School. In these activities each individual discovers many opportunities for service, for free discussion, and for development of special talents. These valuable supplements to the regular academic work unite students with similar interests and add essential training in working with others, in leadership, and in democratic action.

ACTIVITIES

DECORATING for Midwinters dance is as full of thrills as the dance itself.

Student Council's year was crowded with projects which emphasized school spirit and participation of students in school sponsored activities. In an extremely informative orientation program, Council set sophomores straight on "what's what at GHS." Soon afterward sophomore elections were held and eleven members joined the Council. Transfer students were welcomed at a getting-acquainted party given in their honor by the Council. Then, to promote better understanding between students and their representatives, Council presented an assembly program showing how a regular Council meeting was conducted.

students of GHS through reports to home rooms and the "Council Corner," a column in High Life as well as by sending Christmas cards to each homeroom and by sponsoring lunchtime recreation at fourth and fifth periods. A suggestion box was maintained, and all student ideas were carefully referred to the proper committee. Honor Code Day reminded everyone of his duties as a citizen of his school and his community.

After the tension and bustle of exam week, the Midwinters dance was a welcome relief. Typically, Council planning gave "Wonderland by Night" a treasured place in the memories of all GHS students. No less enjoyable events were Homecoming, May Day, and the Prom. As the Council members gave their year-end committee reports, they saw that their hard work had successfully created harmony between the student body and Council.

At the Youth Council initiation, newly elected members gagged on peculiar concoctions or cooled off in buckets of ice. After this ordeal, however, they were ready to join advisor Joanne Parker and chairman Jeannie Anderson in planning recreational activities for GHS.

Following each home game, students flocked to an open house sponsored by the council. There, while some danced to the music of a local band or the latest records, others munched refreshments or gabbed about the outcome of the game. A special "dress up" open house after the Whirlies' homecoming victory honored Queen Gloria and her court.

Traffic Squad keeps 1700 on the right track

Thirty-four GHS seniors of the Ferrell Regime — sometimes known as the traffic squad — directed hundreds of confused newcomers to their classes. At first sophomores thought that this was a bossy crew, always telling them which stairs to use, which doors to go out, and where to walk. After a short time, however, the sophomores realized that the boys wearing blue armbands were invaluable when 1,700 students jammed the halls between classes. More than one feminine "soph" was secretly thrilled by a sly whistle from a member of the group. Students who were accustomed to wandering through the halls before and after school or during lunch were surprised to find themselves being escorted downstairs by a conscientious squad member.

Under the leadership of Rea Ferrell and advisor Don Darnell, the traffic squad kept the rambunctious student body in mobile order.

Then as the strains of "Ave Maria" swelled through the silent auditorium, the Torchlight induction service began. A hopeful student caught his breath as the solemn, white-clad figures searched for those who best exemplified the qualifications for membership — scholarship, leadership, character, and service. A gentle tap on the right shoulder, a whispered "Follow me," and suddenly extra work and careful study became worthwhile. At the fall induction the members demonstrated their affection and respect for their advisors and principal by making them honorary members of Torchlight.

Important in Torchlight's busy year was a change in the chapter's constitution which ruled out student participation in selection of members. This revision allowed the GHS chapter to remain a part of the National Honor Society.

In addition to conducting two induction services, the honor society sponsored the annual GHS talent show. Money raised from this event was presented as a $200 scholarship to a deserving student outside Torchlight. After a year of fighting to keep their ninety averages, Torchlight members were ready to relax at the spring initiation party. At the state convention delegates from GHS exchanged ideas with other Torchlight members in North Carolina.

Junior Classical League holds Roman banquet

Inspired by their genuine interest in the classics, members of the Junior Classical League worked together for their common goal — to develop a greater understanding of the modern world through their acquaintance with the ancient Roman and Greek civilizations. The year began with an impressive induction service, during which the new members ceremoniously passed their fingers through a flame as they pledged to carry on the torch of culture lighted centuries ago by the classical civilizations. Under the leadership of President Don Grimes and Advisor Mrs. Mary Madlin, the club had an active year. The group had several programs including one at Christmas when members joined together to sing carols in Latin. The year was climaxed by an important first for the club — a Roman banquet.

"Se declara abierta la sesion." Thus President Charles Thompson called the meeting of the Spanish Honor Society to order. Students having an average of ninety or above in their first-year Spanish classes were considered for membership in the local chapter of Sociedad Honoraria Hispanica. Programs at the monthly meetings included animated panel discussions, interesting speakers, and informative films which provided a glimpse at the colorful culture of Spanish-speaking countries. By selling napkins, the society raised money for a U. S. Savings Bond, which was given to a worthy member at the end of the year.

Membership in History Honor Society was opened to students who had maintained a "B" average during five semesters of history. In lively debates on current world affairs and ancient cultures, members took a long, comprehensive look at the civilizations of the world, past and present. On November 8 in an assembly sponsored by the Society, exchange students who attend colleges in the Greensboro area were interviewed. Applause greeted the students' approval of Southern-style lazy living, and more than one girl at Senior developed a crush on the handsome and articulate brothers from England. Honorary memberships were awarded the foreign students, and they were urged to attend all meetings of the Society.

Quill and Scroll magazine is popular sell-out

From their first meeting in September, members of Quill and Scroll learned to improve their writing through constructive criticism. Club Advisor, Mrs. Jean Newman, and President Francis McNairy constantly reminded the members of the club's purpose: "To give those who are interested in writing an incentive." It was difficult for the selection committee to choose the various items to be published in Homespun, since so many excellent pieces were submitted. After convincing their friends that chocolate would not make faces unsightly, members began selling candy bars to finance the publication of Homespun. Apparently they succeeded, for the magazine did become a reality and every copy was sold almost before the printer's ink was dry.

Eleventh top award is spur to Whirligig staff

As the inevitable February 15 drew near, Room 61 echoed with sounds of clicking typewriters and scurrying feet as the staff worked feverishly to meet the deadline. Captions to write, pictures to crop, copy to finish — these crowded the hours before Mr. Fleming arrived to carry the book off to press.

STAFF EDITORS: McKee, Photography; MacFarland, Literary; Payne and Stewart, Engraving.

Mr. Miller and his trusty flash were kept busy by Martha as she tried to arrange picture schedules to please everyone. Dorothy and Lewanna mounted all the class pictures in record time, then helped Rhea write the captions. Their distress call, "Anybody recognize this person?" sounded through the room, growing more frantic as time flew. The center of attention was usually the well-worn dummy, which created almost as many problems as it solved.

Jess and Dale learned that it was a full-time job writing, lengthening, and shortening their copy to fit Brenda's ever-changing layouts. Miss Powell, always ready to do more than her share, willingly gave advice and guidance to the staff members. In the business corner, Mr. Colson and Steve kept up the book work, while Wink "pounded" the streets selling ads and afterwards worked frantically on the ad section layouts, finding interesting informals to brighten them up.

Jimmy bopped in at the last minute with "Whirlie Words" for Jean to type — if the typewriters were working. Through it all, Caralee was studying Spanish in the relaxing atmosphere.

So life went around High Life. In spite of all obstacles, however, the copy got to the printer, the pictures to the engraver, and the finished product to the masses.

Later in the year the GHS chapter played hostess to the FTA state convention held at Woman's College. There State President Jess MacFarland and Annette Anderson, State Corresponding Secretary, regretfully relinquished their positions to the incoming officers. As entertainment the local chapter presented a skit, "For Want of a Teacher." At a mother-daughter tea held at the Woman's College Alumnae House on February 11, the club presented another skit, "What Is a Teacher?" On May 12 FTA members were guests at a Delta Kappa Gamma meeting where they again demonstrated their dramatic ability with a skit.

Because last year gave such a successful start to the Medical Club, this year's group had to work hard to attain and surpass the goals set by their predecessors. With the help of Dr. Edward P. Benbow, medical advisor, and faculty advisors Mrs. Kate Everhart and Mrs. Carol Fountain, programs on fields of medicine from surgery to psychology were planned. Films and talks by local doctors highlighted the programs. On February 10, seven members visited the UNC School of Medicine to see projects on heart surgery. Later some senior members of the organization took a trip to the hospital at Duke University. Finally, the club sponsored an assembly, which enlightened the student body on one of the many fields of medicine.

"Deionization of water by electrodialysis" might seem a hopelessly complicated term to most students. For members of the GHS Science Club, however, it was merely one of the many fascinating topics discussed and studied in their meetings. Throughout the year the club sent up weather balloons carrying instruments which recorded data on cloud formations and atmospheric conditions. When the launchings were unsuccessful, the balloons managed to create interesting situations. Members will long remember their precarious trip along the roof of the cafeteria building to untangle a wayward balloon from the treetops.

PLAYMASTER OFFICERS are, top to bottom, President Griffin, Radcliffe, Day, McKee.

Opening night jitters vanished quickly when Playmasters heard the audience's applause at the performance of Family Circle. The group had combined very hard work, talent, and just plain fun in their fall production of the three-act comedy. Before the success of this production, however, members of the cast and crew had studied and written various plays to increase their understanding of the theatre.

Induction of new members took place at a fall dinner meeting. The sixteen new "wearers of the mask" demonstrated their talent to the group by presenting pantomimes. The newcomers had earned the required 100 points before joining the organization by participating in plays, working back-stage, selling tickets, or helping with make-up and costumes.

In the spring the group presented the beloved story, Little Women, for elementary school children on a Saturday afternoon, a first for the Playmasters. The production gave every member an opportunity to demonstrate his particular talent, whether in constructing the scenery or sewing new costumes, collecting props or actually acting. Dolls dressed in Little Women costumes were given to the school children as souvenirs of the performance.

In April the Carolina Dramatics festival was held. Again this year the GHS Playmasters polished their acting skills and worked hard to perfect the one-act play they entered in the competition.

Six volunteer work groups helped to make life easier for both students and teachers at GHS. As teachers called for books throughout the year, Mr. Glenn's bookroom assistants counted, checked, and numbered books and sent them on to the teachers. Students who spent their study periods working in the office eased some of the tremendous responsibilities of Mr. Routh, Mrs. Coltrane, and Miss Moore. These helpers greeted visitors, typed reports, and ran countless errands.

Taking inventory, cutting coupons, and filling orders for supplies from other schools kept Mr. Johnson's school store assistants busy. While in the Dean's office, Miss Wood's industrious helpers answered the school phones, looked up schedules, and checked on reasons for absences and tardies. Several students volunteered their services to Miss Blackmon, Miss Furey, and Mrs. Moody to help them with the many duties of the guidance center. Carrying transcripts to the office, running errands, and making appointments were among their many jobs.

At every assembly, the stage crew created order out of the apparent chaos of ropes, lights, and curtains. Working behind the scenes at GHS assemblies, the group kept programs running with professional smoothness.

GHS students are grateful to the library council and advisors, Miss Herring and Miss Weir. How could biology students have completed their science projects, or English students their book reports and term papers without the library and these tireless workers? Early in the morning — whether it was already warm and humid, or still cold and dark — the big orange fleet of school buses began their daily journeys. Disregarding ominous weather and the countless suggestions of fifty backseat drivers, the Wheel Club steered their charges over 225 miles a day. Mr. Lody Glenn, the group's advisor, had carefully selected safe drivers who would accept the responsibility for the lives of 2,000 student riders. Two feminine members of the club proved that girls, too, could be expert and safe drivers.

Once a month the club congregated at the Mayfair for a sociable supper meeting. At their December meeting excitement filled the air as the members made last-minute plans for their advisor's Christmas gift. The Wheel Club watched as Mr. Glenn, his famous smile lighting his face, accepted the beautiful Hi-Fi set they presented to him.

"We earn, we learn, we have fun too" was the motto of Distributive Education classes at GHS. Not only did every student under this phase of the cooperative program have a job at which he worked several hours every afternoon and usually on Saturdays, but there was a variety of meetings, activities, and contacts he had, month after month, that helped to mold him into a poised, happy individual while he earned his salary.

D.E. OFFICERS Swain, Matthews, and Marsden learn many practical things through use of audio-visual equipment.

Major learning activity outside the job itself was the daily study in class of each student's particular type of work, the films seen and evaluated, the discussions led by students and participated in by everyone. They had club meetings as members, not only of the local and state D.E. Clubs, but also of a national organization. They had to live up to stringent standards in all three of these clubs. They attended the Central District meeting at Pleasant Garden in the fall, the state convention at the O. Henry Hotel in March, accepting heavy responsibilities and bringing away honors from both.

To prove the "fun" part of the motto true, they had many social meetings, ranging from get-acquainted parties and a Halloween party to a covered dish dinner and a talent show.

Eleven girls and twenty-five boys taking D.O. Trades spent the year gaining valuable experience in addition to attending school. Under this program these students, who were employed in jobs varying from draftsmen to dental technicians during the afternoon, attended regular classes in the morning. Though this was a rough schedule, those following it found several compensations. They were able to earn money while finishing high school, and also they were gaining valuable training for jobs they would hold after graduation. The group and Coordinator Alderman even managed to work attendance at the VIC Convention and a Christmas Party into their tight schedule.

Fifty students comprising this year's class were carefully selected from the 100 who applied after last spring's assembly explaining the co-operative department. These fifty performed secretarial, stenographic, clerical, and bookkeeping work. The chance to profit from their mistakes and improve their skills, the chance to adjust to real life problems and to mingle with members of the business world were a few advantages they enjoyed.

In the classroom, students improved shorthand and typing skills and their telephone manners. Their notebooks included newspaper articles about firms that employed office practice students and also spelling tests and lists of words learned on the job which they expected to incorporate into their vocabularies. Throughout the year they emphasized punctuality and good health as they strove to uphold their class motto: "A day's work for a day's pay."

Glee Clubs combine to warm chilled football

As usual, members of the beginning glee club were dubbed "billygoats" and "biddy brains" by "Tuttle" and "Meredith." They soon learned that controlled breathing, correct vowel placement, and sight reading were prerequisites for their coveted goal — a seat in the choir. Glee clubs faced an audience for the first time at the half-time of the GHS-Page football game. In a co-operative effort and undaunted by the chilly weather, choruses and bands from both schools performed a medley of tunes from "The Sound of Music" as a salute to the late Oscar Hammerstein, II.

Girls who learned to "get that jaw down" and mastered tricky rhythms were promoted to the advanced glee club. The group provided appropriate music for Torchlight tappings. To spread the Yuletide spirit, they sang carols from a float in the Christmas parade and at the annual GHS Christmas pageant. Second semester, "Tuttle" and "Meredith" used study halls to drill glee club members in precise diction and smooth, rhythmical execution. Perfection of interpretation and technique were "musts" for a superior rating at State Contest.

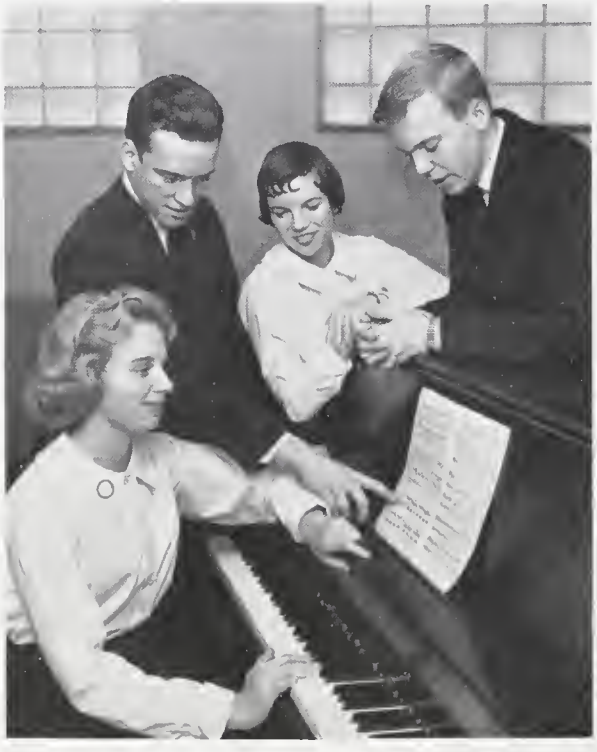
Composer and his composition challenge Choir



As school began sixty-six choir members reluctantly dragged their thoughts from last summer's trip to Nassau and concentrated on the challenging year ahead. "Tuttle" and "Meredith," monarchs of the music room, were joined by Mr. John Barnes Chance, a young composer working in Greensboro schools this year under a Ford Foundation grant. After adjusting their ears to the modern harmonies that characterized his music, the choir began memorizing Mr. Chance's work for choir and orchestra, "Blessed Are They." Meredith jabbed lazy diaphragms and Tuttle yelled "Slow down!" countless times before the December 8 premiere of "Blessed Are They."

In addition to performances at many civic clubs and school functions, the choir prepared a program for the Southern Music Educators' Conference in Asheville. "Sing better than your best," Tuttle always demanded. When the group performed works of four Ford Foundation composers, they answered this challenge.

Mr. M. T. Cousins' cantata telling the story of the "Book of Exodus" neared completion this year. Two movements, "Exodus" and "Sinai," were performed with technical skill and sensitive attention to detail at the February choir-band show. Music critics, parents, and students agreed that hearing Mr. Cousins' composition was an inspirational and unforgettable experience. Even the composer, who listened intently from his balcony seat, was highly pleased with the interpretation of his work. He said as much when he paid the choir a visit the next day. It was a proud and happy moment for them. No wonder the junior members of the choir eagerly await the completion of the final movement next year.

Still dreaming of Nassau in September, band members trudged into the music building. Soon Mr. Chance, Greensboro's composer-in-residence, presented the band with "Nocturne and Dance," which was played at the Fall Concert.

In February the band and choir presented a joint concert, at which they performed "Exodus" and "Sinai," two parts of a cantata by Mr. M. T. Cousins.

Twenty-seven members of the concert band were selected by audition to play in the All-State Band, which met in Chapel Hill during February. The GHS band contributed over twice as many players as any other participating band.

In April the band went to Asheville, where they performed music by Mr. Chance at a meeting of the southern division of the Music Educators' National Conference.

During the year, the members of the training band prepared themselves through hard work and practice for membership in the concert band. For sophomores, juniors, and seniors alike, playing in the band was a rewarding, enjoyable experience.

Orchestra members were thrilled to receive their first piece of music composed by Mr. John Barnes Chance, Greensboro's composer-in-residence. "Blessed Are They," a movingly beautiful composition, had its premiere performance at the annual choir-orchestra show. Twice during the year the group demonstrated their skill to the student body in assembly programs. As a project to raise money for instrument repairs and new music, the orchestra held a pancake supper at Friendly Shopping Center in November. Although the temperature dropped to 32 degrees, a horde of hungry orchestra fans came to eat the delectable pancakes while they helped to fill the treasury.

Many of the young musicians spent long hours preparing for All-State tryouts, with the result that twenty were chosen for the All-State orchestra and six more for the accompanying workshop. Dan Richman was picked by the audition committee to be concertmaster of this select group and John Monroe was named first cellist. Icy roads postponed the group's trip to East Carolina College late in January, but the later weekend at Burlington, spent in intense rehearsals and performance, was worth the wait. The All-State Orchestra performed once more on April 22, when they were invited to play for the Southern Division of Music Educators National Conference meeting in Asheville.

Talented members of Euterpe-Symphonia increased their music appreciation and skill by discussing, performing, and enjoying many musical selections at their regular meetings. The twenty-five music students — pianists, cellists, vocalists, and violinists — looked forward to the highlight of each meeting, the program, in which several members entertained the group with musical performances from memory or introduced new music. Often visits by noted musicians gave the young people a glimpse into the professional world of tone and tempo. Participation in the state Euterpe-Symphonia Convention in February and auditions for scholarships were also a part of the group's active and challenging schedule. As a grand finale to their successful and inspiring year, the members held their Senior Recital in April.

Council regulates and advises service clubs

Inter-club council made sure that friendly rivalry between clubs did not hinder their value to the school. President Charles Tate and Mrs. Pfaff, council advisor, met with four representatives from each club on alternating Sundays. The Council organized cooperative efforts of the member clubs, prevented duplication of projects, and regulated induction of members. Rules set down in the Inter-Service Club Council Constitution were strictly enforced to maintain the standards of the individual organizations. By encouraging understanding and cooperation among the clubs, the Council increased its usefulness to the school.

Junior Civinettes, Senior High's only girls' service club, placed special emphasis this year on promoting school spirit. During the summer, even before the election of sophomore members, Civinettes were hard at work creating blue and white shakers from rustling mountains of crepe paper and rolls of string. Freezing weather at football games was warmed by sunny-faced Civinettes distributing shakers. Civinette bulletin boards placed at strategic points around town reminded people of Greensboro to support the Whirlies. To encourage attendance at games away from Greensboro, Civinettes and Civitans jointly sponsored buses to several important games.

Civinettes did not limit their support to the major sports. In cooperation with the intramural athletics program, they furnished plaques for the winners in each division. When the honors had been won, Civinettes continued to exemplify the increased school spirit at GHS by polishing all Senior's trophies. At the Faculty-Civinette basketball game, students watched the hilarious struggle between their classmates and such outstanding players as "Tiger" Miller and "Merry" Meredith.

Civinettes tried to make all phases of life at Senior High more enjoyable. In September they distributed "Welcome" pencils to sophomores and pocket calendars to the entire student body. Christmas meant selling seventy-five pounds of fruitcake per member, and spring brought the Civinette Carnival with its homemade food sale and games for all. At their Men's Night and Mothers' Night dinners, Civinettes finally relaxed from the hectic pace of a busy and profitable year.

Jr. Civitan Club keeps school and community

VICTORY FLAG, Jr. Civitan gift to GHS, flies every time Whirlies win a game.

Outstanding contributions to the life of school and community distinguished the Junior Civitan Club in its seventh year. Civitans supplied information to students with the distribution of the Civitan Student Handbooks, an announcement board in the main hall, and frequently issued pocket bulletin boards. Civitans supported sports by ushering at football games, donating a warm-up ball in school colors to the basketball team, flying the Civitan victory flag to celebrate Whirlie triumphs, and posting maps to locate out-of-town games. Civitans' sale of season tickets made possible reduced student rates and raised funds for the Athletic Association.

Other Civitan projects included maintaining a student "Hall of Fame," distributing information on tests, building benches along the covered walkway, reseeding bare spots in the school lawn, and donating materials to the school guidance center and school library. Not limiting their efforts to the school, the Civitans donated athletic supplies to a children's home, made several collections for charities, and sent food packages overseas to orphans. These projects, financed through the club's fruit cake sale, helped members to grow and mature. The efforts of each member to improve school and community made the name "Jr. Civitan" synonymous with "service."

WHIRLIBIRD, always a spirited Junior Jaycee, supplies color and humor as he cavorts at games.

This year the Junior Jaycees concentrated on an important objective: service to the school. Decals bearing the GHS emblem were given to all new students and were displayed proudly as symbols of school spirit. Another spirit booster, the "Name the Whirlibird" contest, increased attendance at football games for Greensboro's Four-A champions. Traditionally the club presented the Roger Hobbs trophy to Senior's most outstanding athlete. Continuing their well-rounded program of service, Jaycees donated $50 to the school library to be used for the purchase of additional materials. To help beautify the school and increase interest in America's cultural heritage, the club placed three pictorial maps in the clinic. Trash cans painted by the members in traditional blue and white reminded careless students of their responsibilities as school citizens.

A very close relationship between the Junior Jaycees and their sponsors, the Greensboro Jaycees, was climaxed and strengthened by their joint dinner meeting. Here the Junior Jaycees, in charge of the program, explained the purpose and work of their organization.

As the oldest service club at Senior, the Key Club has contributed greatly to the improvement of GHS. Led by Dennis Saunders, the club made this year one of the most prosperous and serviceable in its history.

At the beginning of the year, Key Club members created an atmosphere of friendship by distributing "Welcome" cards to all the slightly nervous sophomores. One of their biggest projects of the year followed soon — the erection of flag poles in the stadium to hold the flags of conference opponents as well as the flag of the United States. As a practical service members faithfully cleaned the stadium after each home football game. More projects in connection with sports included preparing various brochures, distributing programs at basketball games, and giving oranges to visiting football teams at the half-time.

Principal and most appreciated service of the year was the distribution of the Key Club Directory. The Directory, an annual project, was compiled in the fall and a copy given to each student and teacher. At Christmas time members hung a cheery message in the main hall; they also gave food and clothing to an unfortunate family. Later they sponsored the printing of the Honor Code cards in cooperation with the Student Council. As a final project, the club sponsored the Sandy Nininger Award, which was presented to the student the members felt had used his abilities to the best advantage.

Concentrating on service to others, the Order of DeMolay collected for several days' supply of food to give to a needy family. Christmastime was made brighter for fifty underprivileged children, who were guests of the chapter for a Christmas party, with turkey, toys, and door prizes.

In a state-wide safe-driving campaign, the local chapter put appropriate stickers on cars and sponsored a fifteen minute radio segment to urge highway safety. Socially, DeMolays were busy with banquets, dances, conventions, and hayrides. Always present at these events was pretty Carol Johnson, chapter sweetheart.

Les Freres

Les Freres worked steadily toward their goals of service and fellowship. The members cooperated in several successful projects, first of which was a profitable candy sale. Then the club made plans to place door mats at the ends of the hall in the main building. They cleaned up the Y camp to secure funds for a big project at the end of the year. The boys also held several social gatherings. Their motto — "To create, maintain, and extend sound principles of good character throughout the home, school, and community" — was evident in the activities of industrious Les Freres.

Under a revised constitution, the purpose of Philomathion Hi-Y remained constant: "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian fellowship." Through service projects, such as collecting for charities and giving a Christmas party for needy children, the Club improved their community. At Senior they aided in the school spirit campaign and presented to the school a special project kept secret until the end of the year. Aside from external displays of the Philomathion value, the most important function of the organization was improving the members themselves through informative programs at meetings and such social activities as group picnics, hayrides, and parties.

PICTURESQUE Christmas program by Seniors is impressive pageant.

Assembly programs are varied and graphic

When football and basketball teams refreshed the student body on the rules of their games, hopes were high that girls would no longer confuse touchdowns with free throws. Mr. William Sanders, editorial cartoonist of the Greensboro Daily News, illustrated an informative talk with cartoons and caricatures. Judge Percy Wall explained how traffic courts try to encourage safe teen-age driving. At Thanksgiving Mr. Jack Roe gave an inspiring and appropriate address. The Christmas pageant by the Senior class depicted with carols and tableaux the miracle of the first Christmas. From Mr. Weaver's description of his trip to Russia to a graphic discussion of ice hockey, assemblies this year were informative and entertaining.

1960 SENIOR PROM transports students far from reality of exams for one romantic evening.

Mood at GHS dances is friendly and relaxed

Dancers whirling, soft, tantalizing music, girls in beautiful dresses, a relaxed, friendly atmosphere — these are only the highlights of a GHS dance whose motif may vary from "Wonderland by Night" in January to "Sayonara" at the end of a hard but rewarding year. Although usually marking the end of a semester and those dreaded exams, Senior High dances continue on a smaller scale all year as open houses in the gym. On special occasions there is the added attraction of a band or combo. For Homecoming one can expect a dress-up-a-little-more-than-usual affair in honor of our chosen queen.

"WONDERLAND by Night" is fitting theme for Midwinters dance.

The scene is set; the musicians are ready; decorations, worked on so hard by many committees, are finally ready for the critical eye of the typical Senior High student. Tickets have been printed and sold; all the final planning has been completed. Now it's time to open the doors and allow the crowd to enter. Take it easy, Gang! For the next three hours, you are free to relax and think the thoughts of the free and young-of-heart. We know the evening will be a happy one for everyone.

1960 Homecoming is climaxed by open house

On October fourteen two football powers, the Greensboro and Reidsville teams, clashed on the gridiron. On that evening, however, an equally colorful and keenly anticipated event was the annual homecoming program at half-time. Excitement mounted, for one of nineteen senior girls who had been chosen by the senior members of the football team was about to be revealed as the Homecoming Queen of 1960.

One by one these nineteen beauties and their escorts were presented to the eager spectators. Applause and cheers of approval greeted the announcement that head-cheerleader, Martha McKee was the first runner-up, and that Gloria Griffin had captured the title of Homecoming Queen. Gloria was crowned by Tommy Whiteside, student body president, while Betty Tucker, last year's queen, looked on approvingly. After the game, the victorious Whirlies and jubilant fans honored the queen and her court at a special homecoming open house.

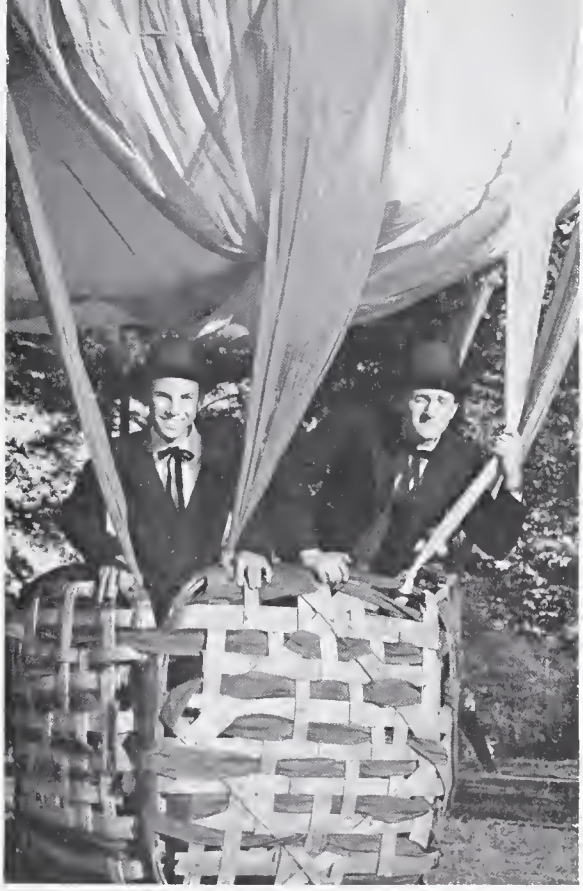
'60 May Day wafts spectators around the world

MAY COURT 1960 (both pages) — Whiteside, Harmon; vonHerrmann, Roberts; Jamieson, McComb; J. Parker, Childress; Johnson, Pegg; Blair, Upchurch; Saunders, Junior Maid of Honor Griffin; Starr, Senior Maid of Honor Wrenn; May Queen Betty Tucker, Escort Bowen, senior class president; Sophomore Maid of Honor Sartin, Fesmire;

Sunshine and blue skies greeted the seventeen beauties of the 1960 May court and their Queen, Betty Tucker. In a basket suspended beneath a balloon, Charles Jones and Lester Wicker made a trip "Around the World in 80 Days." Countries in which the strange vessel landed were represented by a colorful variety of dances, ranging from the sinuous motions of a South Sea island hula to the lively rhythm of a Virginia reel. Old England was depicted with the traditional rollicking Maypole dance.

Finally, to entertain their monarch the members of the court performed the graceful minuet. Climaxing the all-too-brief world tour was the coronation of her royal highness, Betty Tucker. The spectators rose to their feet as Dickie Bowen, senior class president, placed the crown on the glistening blonde hair of the petite queen and presented her with a bouquet of long-stemmed red roses.



BY BALLOON, Wicker and Jones travel "Around the World in 80 Days" to see 1960 May Day. Below: National dances that reflect the day's theme are reviewed at each landing by these impressionable travelers.

A BIG MOMENT in the lives of 475 graduating seniors arrives as parents and friends look on with approval.

Seniors' last weeks are hectic and nostalgic

UNC CHANCELLOR William C. Friday gives a meaningful address to 1960 graduation class.

Twelve years before, it had all begun. However, if the 1960 Senior Class had been told 'way back then about the good times, wonderful friends, and vital learning school would bring, they would never have believed it. While they were discovering these things, time flew — especially those intensely meaningful last weeks. Crowded into a few days were many humorous, serious, and nostalgic events for the graduating class. First came Awards Day — a day when all seniors showing outstanding qualities were recognized. Then the Senior Tea was presented in honor of the Senior Class by the GHS faculty.

One of the impressive ceremonies, the Baccalaureate service, was held at the First Baptist DIPLOMA presentation is pinnacle of three years of resolute study.

MRS. PFAFF chats happily with graduating seniors at 1960 Senior Tea.

Church. Dr. Claud B. Bowen, father of the president of the Senior Class, delivered a message that the Seniors will long remember as inspirational and challenging. All too soon came June 9 and the unforgettable moment when, as the Seniors finally clutched their diplomas, they realized what rich rewards the years of hard work had brought. The graduating class, with mixed emotions and with the shadow of GHS indelibly impressed in their minds and hearts, set out to attain their goals.

A MAYPOLE on a showboat is a rare sight indeed, but obliging Smith Goodrum becomes one during the 1960 Class Day.

"SNOW," as on many other Wednesdays, surprises and delights 1960 Class Day cast, assembled onstage for their finale.

A note of thanks . . .

Many factors go into the making of a yearbook, but the people behind the scenes are the ones who help make it a true picture of school life. We would like now to thank these people who have contributed so much to our publication.

At Washburn Printing Company we say thank you to MR. FRANK FLEMING and MR. EARL POWELL for the never-ending help, advice, and encouragement given us in the printing of our book. To MR. GORDON BRIGHTMAN, MR. RALPH VAN DYKE and EMILY FLANDERS at Jahn and Ollier Engraving Company we say thank you for the preparation of our dummy and for the superior engravings which you made for us. At Martin's Studios, we thank MR. CAROL MARTIN and especially MR. MALCOLM MILLER for their expert picture taking and for their patience at putting up with odd picture schedules. Also, thanks to MR. E. L. THOMAS for his many candid shots and helpful advice in planning important pictures. For taking all the individual pictures we thank MR. FAY SMITH, MR. ANDY LAWS, and the other photographers at Smith Studios in Raleigh. Their service was both pleasant and efficient. At the Greensboro Daily News and the Greensboro Record we wish to thank MR. TOM NORTHINGTON and MR. JOHN CATHEY. They were kind enough to supply many pictures for our Sports coverage. We thank, also, the editors of High Life and their photographer, Bill Good, for squeezing our "must" pictures into their schedule.

Here at school, faculty members have been very helpful and have generously given of their time, MRS. MARGARET HADDEN and MRS. KATHRYN McENTIRE have been exceptionally helpful in allowing us free use of their telephone and typewriters for any necessary work. MISS IDA BELLE MOORE, MRS. JESSIE COLTRANE, and MISS ROWENA MONTAGUE have given of their time and effort to help us locate names, records, take up money from yearbook sales, and to write checks for our expenses. Homeroom teachers have also been very considerate in taking up money for book sales, checking name lists and excusing students from homeroom at times to work on Whirligig.

To the merchants, businessmen, and individual sponsors of our yearbook, we say thank you for showing your interest in our school and for helping to make our 1961 Whirligig possible.

MR. A. R. CHAMBERS deserves our gratitude for all the unwieldy packages from the engravers he carried to us. We would like to thank the staff members for working so hard and tirelessly to publish this book. You've been wonderful! JESS MacFARLAND notes extra thanks for dreaming up our theme. A special thanks goes to MR. A. P. ROUTH and MR. STEWART COLSON for handling the financial problems which we faced. We couldn't have done without you! A very special thank you goes to MISS VIRGINIA POWELL, our advisor, for her willingness to work many extra hours in helping us publish this book.

A yearbook is only as good as the people who are connected with it can make it. We thank everyone who has made this, the 1961 Whirligig, a true and memorable picture of our school life.
